

4 distribution habits that deserve a red card

For founders whose app nobody finds.

THE REASON

They all wait for buyers

Each habit waits for buyers to find you.
Buyers don't search for apps they don't know.
They ask for help in public instead.
Here's the first card.

RED CARD 01 / 04

Launching once, then silence

Launch day gets likes. Then the feed moves on.
Post something useful every day after.
I learned this with my first app.
The next card gets you banned.

RED CARD 02 / 04

Dropping your link

A link with no answer reads like an ad.
Answer the question in full first.
Link only if they ask.
But first, find the right threads.

RED CARD 03 / 04

Waiting to be searched

Nobody searches for an app they don't know.
They describe the problem instead.
Search for the problem, not your name.
I broke the last card myself.

RED CARD 04 / 04

Not asking where they came from

My first 2 paying users found me.
I still don't know how.
Ask every new user where they found you.
Then do more of that.

Built it. Nobody finds it?

Send this to a founder holding one of these cards.
Follow for one distribution move a day.

Follow @stacklevels →