3 rules that beat talent. Every single time.

The rules I build by

30 years of writing code.
Talent never kept me going.
Three rules did.
Here's the first.

1

Consistency beats talent

Talent shows up some days.
Consistency shows up daily.
But what keeps you showing up?

2

Discipline beats motivation

Motivation comes and goes.
Discipline works on bad days too.
But a plan only counts if it ships.

3

Progress beats perfection

Done and shared beats perfect and hidden.
Ship, learn, ship again.
Start small. Here's how.

Pick one thing

One task you can do daily.
Do it on bad days too.
Share it before it's perfect.
Repeat.

You don’t need more talent. You need a rule.

Follow @stacklevels →